Parents and students in the Carroll County School District will have another week to prepare and decide whether they want to send their child to school face-to-face or virtually.

The school board approved a proposed new calendar presented by Superintendent Jim Ray to delay school until Thursday, August 13.

Federal Programs Director Sara Johnson said parents would have until Wednesday, August 5, to complete surveys indicating if they want their child to go traditionally or virtually.

Ray said when students return to school, school will let out at 2 p.m. to allow teachers time to plan for distance learning and answer questions from students. He also said masks are now required for all students, teachers, staff, faculty, and visitors.

One of the biggest questions that arose from the meeting Thursday night was attendance

One of the biggest questions that arose from the meeting Thursday night was attendance and how it would be taken with distance learning. According to Assistant Superintendent Wendy Hubbard, the learning management system the district chose, Canvas, notates the time when a student is in Canvas. She said students, whether at home or school, must have 240 minutes of instructional time per week.

Hubbard said she wants parents to understand that even with the learning packets that will be sent out, attendance will still be taken.

"What I want parents to know is that if your child is not logged into Canvas and is working for 240 minutes, they are considered absent for the day. When we do learning packets, if the teacher sends on a packet with Math, Science, Reading, English, Social Students, whatever on Monday and it says Monday, September whatever. When you turn in that packet on Tuesday, and the packet is not completed your child is absent for the day. If Tuesday's, if Wednesday's if Thursday's [lesson] is not completed your child is absent for the day," Hubbard said.

She said a child could not log into Canvas and just have it open. They have to be logged into their classes and doing work.

County will pursue more virus aid

 Greenwood Commonwealth - 14 hours ago

The Leflore County Board of Supervisors discussed applying for more funding from the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CARES) Act as well as from the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Fred Randle, director of the Greenwood-Leflore Emergency Management Agency, brought information to the board regarding the two new COVID-19 emergency relief programs. The FEMA application had no deadline, but the CARES fund forms are due Oct. 15, he said.

The reimbursable expenses through CARES Act funds would include providing some paid sick/medical leave, covering the cost for sanitation and social distancing improvements in prisons and jails and covering unemployment insurance costs.

It would also cover expenses for quarantining people as well as the pay for those who are working to mitigate COVID-19.

The reimbursable expenses through FEMA would cover the cost of the disinfection of public facilities, medical facility service and supplies, establishing temporary medical facilities, emergency medical transport, communication of health orders and other technical assistance.

Randle and Leflore County Chancery Clerk Johnny Gary Jr. will oversee the application process.

Randle also discussed purchasing more technologically advanced thermometers to take the temperatures of people entering the courthouse. The supervisors asked Randle to come back with more information, saying they would discuss it further at their next meeting on Aug. 10.

Also Monday, the board voted to continue the employee health insurance with provider Morgan White Group, which insures the employees with Blue Cross Blue Shield.

District 3 Supervisor Anjuan Brown said after the meeting that he liked this plan the best of the available options because it kept the deductibles at $500.

Brown also urged employees to take advantage of the county's free medical screenings.

He said such preventive measures could "help the individual, or employee, and certainly down the road could help some medical costs."

Some school board members waiting to make decision on fall sports vote

 Greenwood Commonwealth - 15 hours ago

The Greenwood Leflore Consolidated School District's top brass thinks it's best for the safety of all to shut down fall sports and activities for its three high schools.

On Tuesday, concerned parents, teachers, coaches and players will find out what the school board thinks during its scheduled meeting. If some of the members of the five-person committee have made up their minds already, they are keeping it to themselves.

Of the three board members reached by phone Monday, all said they are undecided on how they may vote. Dr. Ro'Shaun Bailey shared pretty much the same sentiment of fellow board members Antwoine Williams and Jackie Cooper-Lewis.

"I am waiting to see all the information that the superintendent has to present before I make any decisions," Bailey said. "I know there is a lot of interest on this topic in the community. I have heard from angry parents about the possibility of not playing, and I have heard from people who will be just as upset if we do play."

"It's a tough decision, but in the end, safety of our students must come first."

Last week during a work session, Dr. Mary Brown, superintendent, recommended the cancellation to the board. She told them that following the long list of health guidelines for a safe return to play wasn't "feasible" for the district and that it's just "not safe" to restart.

Last week during a work session, Dr. Mary Brown, superintendent, recommended the cancellation to the board. She told them that following the long list of health guidelines for a safe return to play wasn't "feasible" for the district and that it's just "not safe" to restart sports yet.

The Mississippi High School Activities Association has delayed the start of the 2020 season from Aug. 21 to Sept. 4. Last week, the Greenville Public School District board of trustees voted to cancel all fall middle and high school athletics and activities in a 5-0 vote.

Many public high school programs resumed workouts in June and are forging ahead with plans to play in 2020. But coaches at Greenwood, Amanda Elzy and Leflore County were never cleared by the district to resume workouts once the MHSAA announced its guidelines for a safe return to play.

Carey Weaver, offensive coordinator at GHS, said last week he supports Brown's recommendation even though he knows it will hurt some kids' chances for athletic scholarships.

"I see both sides, but in the end, we have to make sure everyone is safe first," Weaver said.

Dylan Foster says once you have lived in the Delta, you don't ever want to leave.

"You're going to want to spend your entire life here," said the 23-year-old Greenwood resident.

Foster, who graduated from Pillow Academy in 2016 and Mississippi Delta Community College in 2018, spends his days fixing air conditioning units for people throughout the community through his employer, Harold Floyd Heating and Air.

Foster began working there in 2014 while he was a sophomore in high school.

"I would leave school in the afternoons to go cut metal at work," he said. "I gradually worked my way up to other tasks, and when I graduated from Pillow, I decided to make a career out of the things I had been learning."

Foster began the HVAC program at MDCC in the fall of 2016 and quickly excelled at it.

"I learned a lot while working after school," Foster said, "so once I got to college, I knew a lot more than what they expected any freshman to know."

Once he graduated from the HVAC program, Foster continued his career at Harold Floyd Heating and Air as a full-time employee. He has been working there for more than six years.

Once he graduated from the HVAC program, Foster continued his career at Harold Floyd Heating and Air as a full-time employee. He has been working there for more than six years.

A typical day for Foster consists of "going house to house working" as people call in needing assistance with their air conditioning.

"My favorite part of my job is interacting with the customers and meeting new people," he said.

Foster's wife, Lacy, said this is no surprise to her because her husband is such a people person.

Uptown mall wants downturn in taxes

Enterprise-Journal - 9 hours ago

Edgewood Mall, soon to be known as Uptown McComb, appealed its county tax rates to Pike County supervisors on Monday.

Mall representative William Ward claimed the property has a $7.5 million value, half of what's on the county tax roll.

He said the property sold in 2017 for less than the county's valuation, and he has an appraisal backing up his figures. Ward said malls are losing money nationwide, and Edgewood is still suffering from the loss of anchor store JC Penney.

Tax Assessor Laurie Allen said the Penney loss was a few years ago and was already factored in to the mall's taxes.

She said she lowered the valuation last year on two mall properties: $1.29 million on one and $395,000 on another.

Allen said she knew of nothing that has happened since January 2019 that would justify lowering the mall's value so drastically.

 "I just don't see any logic in decreasing it that much. That's half," she said.

Allen also pointed out plans to rename the mall Uptown McComb, with potentially high-revenue renters such as medical offices.

RockStep Capital of Houston, Texas, bought the shopping center in 2017 and announced the plans last week.

WITH POTENTIALLY HIGH-REVENUE TENANTS SUCH AS MEDICAL OFFICES.

RockStep Capital of Houston, Texas, bought the shopping center in 2017 and announced the plans last week.

In a related matter, supervisors voted 4-1 to hire Crook Appraisal Consultants to appraise the mall property for $7,500.

Supervisor Tazwell Bowsky opposed, saying the county shouldn't have to pay for the appraisal.

Board attorney Wayne Dowdy said Edgewood typically appeals its tax rate and it's helpful for the county to have its own appraisal, as it has hired Crook to do in the past. Allen said Crook charged $15,000 last year but she negotiated it down since the appraisal appears to be on an annual basis.

In another tax appeal, George Glenn of SW 98/99 LLC, owner of Pineview Apartments on Avenue B Extension, McComb, said he agreed with Allen's valuation but thought it shouldn't include personal property such as desks and computers.

"It's just old furniture and a computer gets replaced once in a blue moon when it dies," Glenn said.

 Allen said the business paid $550 on the personal property last year and she saw no legal authority not to include it.

"We're following the law to a T," she said.

In other business, supervisors:

- Received the report of the grand jury sworn in January. It returned a total of 135 indictments, no-billed 38 cases and remanded 13 to the file.
- Renewed a software support agreement with Delta Computer Systems for the tax assessor's office at $840 a month, up from $795.

Virus hospitalizations down, but cases continue to surge

Enterprise-Journal - 9 hours ago

Hospitalizations due to COVID-19 are down across the state, health officials identified fewer cases Monday than in recent days and The Claiborne was removed from a state list of long-term care facilities with ongoing coronavirus outbreaks.

Despite the modest suppression over the weekend, the coronavirus continues to tear through communities in Mississippi, endangering the elderly and otherwise immuno-compromised. Infections among those aged 18-29 continue to define one of the largest public health challenges facing the state.

State Health Officer Dr. Thomas Dobbs said he expects to see a surge in infections once students return to class, with many schools beginning in-person lessons this week.

The Corinth School District opened last Monday and reported its first case of coronavirus on Friday, noting at least 14 other students were directly exposed to the illness.

Amite County School District Supt. Don Cuevas announced over the weekend that students wouldn't return to the classroom until Sept. 8.

 District administrators originally collected feedback from parents and guardians and chose to implement a hybrid schedule wherein half the students would attend lessons in person twice a week and the other half would attend on alternate days.

Wednesday was reserved for sanitizing the campus.

Reeves received reopening plans from every school district last Friday and said he would review them over the weekend before making important announcements about schools at some point this week.

Dobbs said the State Department of Health would recommend that all students and staff wear masks while at school.

Pike County saw a modest increase of 24 infections over the weekend and an additional two deaths, while neighboring Walthall County, experiencing a severe surge in illness, recorded 28 infections and no deaths.

Young people remain the most infected age cohort in Pike County, with 139 people between ages 18-29 falling ill compared to 128 between the ages of 60-69, the group with the second highest number of infections.

The largest surge of infections in Pike County occurred the week of June 27, with about 90 people testing positive for coronavirus. Those numbers decreased slightly the next two weeks.

Pike County is now experiencing a resurgence, with nearly 80 falling ill last week.

Statewide, the recent surge in long-term care infections has slowed. The total was down 33 since Friday with 170 ongoing outbreaks in the state, according to health department data. But Gov. Reeves said

Statewide, the recent surge in long-term care infections has slowed. The total was down 33 since Friday with 170 ongoing outbreaks in the state, according to health department data. But Gov. Reeves said last week that he expects those numbers to surge again following the large number of young people who became infected in recent weeks.

Reeves said he expects the pattern of illness among long-term care residents to be the same as in the first wave of infections among that population, which occurred about six weeks after an unprecedented number of young people became infected just after Fourth of July weekend.

And the City of Magnolia will not hold public work sessions until further notice due to the spread of coronavirus.

Citizen tip leads to drug arrest

Clarksdale Press Register - 4 days ago

A tip phoned into Clarksdale Police has prompted the arrest of a woman on illegal drug charges and authorities are continuing to urge you to help them clean up Clarksdale/

Police reports indicate Maruerite Carter, 38, was arrested after a concerned citizen called and made a suspicious person report. Police reported Carter was found to have an illegal controlled substance in her possession.

Carter was charged with a felony possession of a controlled substance and is currently awaiting to appear before a Municipal Court judge to set bond.

Stop Car Burglaries!

With summertime car burglaries on the rise, the Clarksdale Police Department is asking car owners to help deter auto burglaries by following these three simple tips:

- 1. LOCK YOUR CAR DOORS! Most of our car burglaries are done on unlocked cars. Locking your car doors is the most effective way to prevent your vehicle from becoming a target for thieves.
- 2. TAKE YOUR STUFF. Do not leave items of value in your car. If there is nothing of value in plain view, the thief will move onto the next target.
- 3. REPORT IT! If you are a victim of car burglary, even if nothing is stolen, please, report it. By reporting the incident, you could help us solve a crime!

If you observe suspicious activity in your neighborhood like a car driving slow and someone walking next to it lifting door handles or looking into car windows, IMMEDIATELY report it by calling 911. Many criminal cases have been solved because citizens have taken the initiative to call 911 to report the in-progress crime.

Calling the police can make a difference!

Mississippi Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Andy Gipson announced that residents receiving unsolicited packages of seeds with addresses alleging they are from China, or any foreign country, can now drop off the seeds at the Mississippi State University (MSU) Extension Office located in their county.

"I want to thank MSU Director of Extension Dr. Gary Jackson and the MSU Extension Offices in each county for providing assistance with seed collection during this time. We are continuing to get calls from across the state. We have had 82 reports of these seeds from 45 counties. We ask that the public hold on to the mailing label and place the seeds and packaging in a plastic bag prior to drop off, if possible" said Commissioner Gipson. "The Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce is continuing to work closely with the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service on this issue."

The seeds so far recovered come in a variety of sizes and colors and authorities are looking to determine what they are. Again the USDA and Extension Service are urging people not to get curious and plant the seed.

Residents in all 50 states have now reported receiving suspicious packages of seeds. The seeds and packaging are not deemed harmful to humans or animals at this time, but should not be thrown in normal trash as they could germinate and grow.
